Proposed Woodstock facility for 'sexually abuse reactive' children --

LURC hearing on failed Rangeley plan sheds light on what's on tap here

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Maine Supreme Court has apparently dealt a final blow to Armand and Kathleen Madore's plan to locate a facility for sexually reactive boys in Rangeley Plantation.

The court effectively upheld a decision by the Land Use Regulation Commission to deny a development permit. (The decision affirmed an earlier decision by a Kennebec County Superior Court judge based on a technicality -- the lapsing of a property purchase option.)

The facility would have been similar, although larger, than one the couple is currently proposing for Woodstock. The Madores are planning what they term a residential school for a dozen children ages 9 to 14 on the site of the former Woodstock Wilderness Experience school. It was expected to begin operation in August.

The plan has met with strong opposition from some neighboring residents.

"A for-profit venture"

In 1996, the Madores filed an application with LURC to build a school in Rangeley Plantation. That school would have housed 20 to 24 boys between the ages of 10 and 17 who were termed "sexually reactive." (The term "sexually abuse reactive" has been defined by the Department of Human Services as "so deeply traumatized by sexual abuse they react by acting out the trauma that was perpetrated on them in an aggressive and/or sexual manner.")

DAVID BERENSEN

The plan called for the children to stay on the campus for educational classes, but "use the community's resources, such as the movie theater, library, health center, churches Saddleback Ski Area, local cross-country ski trails, hiking trails, rivers, streams and the region's lakes," according to a report in the Rangeley Highlander newspaper. (This account is taken from several articles printed in the Highlander.)

The Madores described the school, called Western Maine Academy, as a "for-profit venture which will be funded by insurance and state payments and federal Medicaid funds."

Many full-time and summer residents of the region voiced their concerns to LURC about the plan, by both letter and petition. One group of opponents organized as the Mooselookmeguntic Improvement Association.

Two public meetings were also held in Rangeley regarding the proposed school. At one of the meetings, two professionals in the sex offender field offered their comments. James Lehman, a consultant who treats adolescents at the Sweetser School in Saco, said that sexually reactive boys are sent out of state "because they have 'exhausted the services' in Maine. 'They are so sadistic, so sexualized' that they

Selectmen turn to Budget Committee for input on new spending questions

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel selectmen are hoping to get a little buy-in from the Budget Committee on a number of financial decisions -- or potential financial decisions -- facing the town.

The two committees are scheduled to meet jointly next week to look at the airport upgrade project (and a five-year operational budget for the facility), also at the cost of proposed improvements on Swan Hill Road, and at a proposed contract to design a pathway through Bethel Station and a multi-purpose recreational bridge across the Androscoggin River.

In addition, the boards will review a new financial projection from the consulting engineering firm working for the town on the wastewater treatment plant upgrade. That projection suggests the town will need to spend additional money on the firm's engineering services to maintain the level of project scrutiny called for in the existing contract.

The joint meeting, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, will mark the first time since the formation of the Bethel Airport Authority (or its predecessor, the Airport Advisory Committee) that the selectmen have asked the Budget Committee to sign off on the airport's financial affairs.

The decision to involve the Budget Committee came about largely because of the sheer size of the project -- $2.2 million.

No town money is to be spent on the work, which would be funded with state and federal funds, and by a contribution from the American Skiing Company. Nonetheless, the selectmen have said that given the size of the project they feel the Budget Committee needs to be brought into the process.

Also on the table will be a five-year operational budget for the airport. The budget was put together

Airport vote pushed back

With a number of unanswered questions still stacked up over the plan to extend the runway at the Col. Dyke Airfield, the Bethel selectmen have decided to push back the town vote on the question until Aug. 10.

The vote was originally scheduled to come at a special Town Meeting on July 29.

That meeting will still take place, but it will be informational in nature, as the selectmen and members of the Bethel Airport Authority will attempt to address questions raised at an public hearing earlier this month.

The July 29 meeting will be held in the Crescent Park School cafeteria, and will begin at 7 p.m. The Aug. 10 vote will take place at another special Town Meeting.

after the public hearing earlier this month on the airport expansion.

BAA member Nancy Schlieper told the selectmen Monday that the five-year budget does not balance, because the BAA expects part of the airport's future operational costs to come from grants.

"It was strictly an operational budget," she said later, "therefore we did not put down those grants that might come in down the road

Historical Society exhibition looks at the reality of life in Maine -- and the image marketed out of state

By ALISON ALOISIO

"Out of fear of what their cities had become, many upperclass New Englanders longed to return to the simpler life of their forebears. Hoping to understand life's mysteries through contact with the outdoors, they embraced a back-to-nature movement."

"Despite this new appreciation for Maine's wilderness, promoters rushed in to develop the state, making travel quicker and more convenient by extending roads and expanding railways."

It may sound like an account of the forces driving change in Maine over the past 20 years. In truth, the lines describe circumstances in the 1920s. That era is the subject of a current exhibit at the Bethel Historical Society titled, "The Way Life Should Be -- Tourism, Romance and Reality in Early Modern Maine."

The exhibit, funded by the Maine Humanities Council, features dozens of photos from the Gannett Glass Plate Negative Collection. They show Maine life during the period of 1890 through 1930 -- and in many cases, the subjects portrayed are in sharp contrast with the tourism promotions of that time.

Says Randy Bennett, Bethel Historical Society historian: "Maine was presented as a non-threatening retreat. But in reality, there was intolerance for immigrants" -- demonstrated by the organization of a Maine chapter of the Ku Klux Klan in the early 1920s.

Brief narratives accompanying the exhibit describe the conflicting messages sent out from the state near the turn of the century.

An influx of immigrants "alarmed many Yankces," says an exhibit account. "Upper and middle-class residents began to question who belonged in American and who did not. They studied American history in order to help them define just what an American should be. Their effort led to an increased interest in the history and culture of the United States, resulting in the 'Colonial Revival' movement. Americans be-

Fran Bernier and Dascha -- a working partnership

By ALISON ALOISIO

Fran Bernier met her husband, Dick, in Scotland in 1975. "Our first conversation was about dogs," she said.

And they've been having conversations about dogs ever since. Specifically, German Shepherds. Most of their canine discussions center around three topics: obedience training using the same methods used with whales and dolphins; the sport of Schutzhund, which includes training in tracking, obedience and protection; and the promotion of German Shepherd Rescue of New England, a placement agency for unwanted dogs.

Fran, who is originally from Scotland, has owned German Shepherds for more than 30 years -- since she was 16.

What's the appeal? "Their intelligence, the scope of the different kinds of work they can do -- herding, police work," she said. "And their personality and temperament -- their eagerness and enthusiasm."

She taught obedience classes in Scotland, and met Dick while he was doing research to buy German Shepherd puppies.

He found two puppies on a subsequent trip a year later. When he returned to the U.S., Fran came with him.

She continued to work with Shepherds in obedience training here. Then, about 10 years ago, she met another obedience instructor, Sheila Booth. From Booth, she learned of a dog obedience method described in Booth's book, "Purely Positive Training."

"It was like a light switch going on," Fran said. The training utilizes motivational methods -- specifically food and the person/dog relationship -- to teach obedience. "There is no compulsion or correction," she said. "Traditional training involves manipulating the dog physically into doing something."

With Schutzhund training, on the other hand, "correct behavior means a reward. Incorrect behavior means nothing -- you (meaning the dog) don't get it."

It's the same principle, she said, used to train dolphins and whales at marine parks.

She has used it with all four of the Bernier's current canine companions -- nine-year-old Mira and Amber, four-year-old Dascha, and is currently teaching year-old Argus.

As an example of motivational techniques, Fran offers the solution to jumping up. "If they jump up, it's because they want to get near your face. Turn your back, and that

'JET-SKI' PREJUDICE

To the Editor:

I am saddened at the prejudice shown by our local Lakes Association. The article that ran in the "Bethel Citizen" last week about restricting personal water craft (PWC) or "jet-skis" was sickening. We own property on Songo Pond and also own a PWC.

I obviously can't and don't speak for everyone on Songo, but our PWC is no louder, maybe quieter, than the other motor boats that are used on the pond. Restricting just PWC's is like saying, "Ok, you can drive a Ford pickup, but not a GMC."

Our PWC is a three-person family recreation vehicle. Our two young children ride and enjoy it, along with our friends and families. We water ski, tube and have a lot of fun, just as anyone would with their motorboat. There is no chasing loons, coming too close to shore, or putting anyone else at risk. The danger factor is up to the driver as it is with any other motor-powered vehicle. If you're going to restrict PWC's or "jet-skis," why not restrict all motor-powered boats, they can be, with the right (or wrong) operator, just as dangerous as any PWC or jet-ski. Let's make it fair all around.

IT WILL BE A SAFER RUNWAY

To the Editor:

I am a single taxpayer in the Town of Bethel and a small voice concerning the proposed runway extension at Col. Dyke Field. However, the completion of this project would be beneficial to me on a personal basis as I occasionally fly on a corporate jet for the company requiring my consulting services.

Others in the area, as well as myself, currently have to drive to Lewiston, Berlin or Portland to take advantage of similar jet service. I believe flights in and out of Bethel are going to increase as growth continues in the area, whether the runway is extended or not, but the extension will result in a safer runway for the type of aircraft currently using this facility as well as satisfying the requirements of the small jet.

We have a good airport and now we have a chance to make it better. I believe a "yes" vote is appropriate for the runway extension project, which should help promote economic benefits for the Bethel area.

Bud Howe
Bethel

TAKE THE LONG VIEW

To the Editor:

One of the more difficult decisions we make in our lives is to publicly state positions that appear contrary to the opinions of our neighbors and friends. Political pressure often quiets the voices and actions of many and those who show the courage of their convictions do so at some risk. Dexter Stowell has demonstrated such courage by speaking out publicly in favor of the Bethel Airport runway expansion. His point is well taken by this neighbor.

As a community we need to encourage and support the business that a great many of us benefit directly or indirectly. The American Ski Company (and Sunday River in particular) is the only local industry that is growing, a clean creator of a wide job base. Like it or not, this is our future. If the expansion of the airport runway improves the viability of our economic base, then we need to put away our private interests and public rancor and support the business that brings jobs, new construction, local services and a great deal of money in an area that has few if any other opportunities of such dimension and scale.

I now support the airport runway expansion, and I urge other citizens to take the long view and do the same.

John Baylerlein

LET'S BUY BACK MAINE

To the Editor:

What we in this area so easily enjoy -- the mountains, the lakes, the streams -- is also available on a larger scale if we act quickly to save almost one million acres of land for the enjoyment of Maine's citizens.

To raise money for its two Maine paper mills in Westbrook and Skowhegan, the South African Pulp and Paper International Corporation (known as SAPPI) needs to sell its Maine lands by Sept. 30 -- 911,000 acres of forest and waterways.

These acres are in areas familiar to the people of Maine, probably, because they have ski-mobiled, cross-country skied, fished, hunted, tented, canoed, or hiked in them. They include: 60 miles of undeveloped shoreline on Moosehead Lake; 24 miles of riverfront on the Upper Kennebec River; portions of the Appalachian Trail; the northern slopes of Gulf Hagas; Second, Third, Fourth Roach ponds; and many thousands more acres that should be for Maine's public use.

Severe overcutting makes them ripe for development for "leisure homes" and the support systems for those "leisure homes," such as automobiles, stores, resorts, restaurants, B&B's, golf courses, marinas, etc.

--If you enjoy Maine's forests and remaining unsullied waterways;
--If you have children and grandchildren who will want and increasingly need Maine's treasures;
--If you guide, house, or hike with tourists for a part of your income;
--If you think it important to save Maine for the public of Maine --

Then call Gov. King at 1-207-287-3531, or write him a postcard at 1 State House Station, Augusta, ME 04330, and ask that Maine buy the SAPPI lands, perhaps by private financial gifts, or public bond issue, both, or however he makes it happen.

Then call or write your state legislators and congressional members and ask their support. Your children deserve those lands.

Election law under fire

By MIKE BROWN

Despite a rather optimistic but sparse turnout for an ethics commission public hearing on the Maine Clean Election law, the overhaul of the state's election practices is in trouble.

The premise of the statute seems honorable enough -- cutting down on campaign funding to supposedly even the field of those who cannot afford to run for the State Legislature.

But the content is the devil in the details. It is a complicated law which essentially creates a fund through a $2 million legislative appropriation and a $3 annual income tax form check-off box. State candidates can receive some of this funding (by a complicated formula) if they volunteer to limit their spending and refuse money from special interest groups.

That statute decision for candidates strikes right at the heart of political power politics. Lawsuits are already in the hopper works.

Violations of the law, effective in the year 2000, would subject violators to fines up to $10,000. For instance, a candidate who voluntarily participates and then changes his or her mind halfway through the campaign. Participation is voluntary but publicly identified if the candidate refuses participation and which critics say is discriminatory.

Current and expected challenges to the law will be several. One will challenge using the state's General Fund, that is, public tax moneys to support individual and private political campaigns.

Another shot at the law is that it violates free speech by increasing fees, especially for lobbyists. Apparently a robust cadre of lobbyists numbering nearly 300 with total income of some $3 million annually want a free ride or the same fat cushion they have been sitting on for years.

The Maine Civil Liberties Union (as if lobbyists needed a strawman mouthpiece) say doubling the annual lobbyist fee from $200 to $400 a year is not only exorbitant but violates free speech by putting a tax on it. Modest registration fees are OK, it seems, but anything above that, say $3 million in income, unjustly restricts the right to petition government.

Really?

Although there are about 35,864 registered lobbyists in the country, there is no general agreement among the 50 states as to the purpose or content of lobbying. Maine does have a lobbyist procedures law which means registration for one specifically engaged or employed to lobby.

And lobbying is defined as to communicate directly with any official in the Legislature for the purpose of influencing any legislation action or with the governor for the purpose of influencing the approval of a legislative action when compensation or expenditures are made.

There are exceptions. One can lobby up to eight hours in any reporting period without registering. And another mostly overlooked but enormously influential -- lobbying by state officials and other bureaucrats by the current political administration. These governmental lobbying efforts before legislative committees are disguised in the eye of the beholders as the "good" and "bad" points of their pet bills.

These bureaucratic or "executive" lobbyists raise a valid point of conflict of interest in that they are on the public dole and supposedly represent taxpayers and not special political interests.

Professional lobbyists get around specific financial disclosures by filing "compensation" under several evasions but allowable basis. For instance, per diem expenses, portion of retainer, portion of salary, hourly rate to be determined, monthly fee, percentage of contract reimbursement. And the winner -- reasonable attorney fees plus expenses.

Lobbyists' financial pain and suffering is rare. Sean Faircloth, former legislator and Bangor Daily News columnist is a lobbyist for the Maine State Bar Association at $21,000 for four-month session. Jon Doyle, a ubiquitous State House walkman, represents several clients for many thousands of dollars.

Probably the largest hurdle for Maine's new election law will be passing muster of the new 119th Legislature where none of the successful incumbent will have been elected under it. And they may repeat some or all of its many facets and options.

(Veteran newsman and columnist Mike Brown writes regularly on the Augusta political scene. His views are his own and do not necessarily reflect those of The Citizen.)

Worker dies at Mead mill

RUMFORD--Federal and state officials are investigating the death Monday of Richard Whittemore, 27, at the Mead Corp. mill. Whittemore, an experienced welder, was pronounced dead at Rumford Community Hospital after he was taken there from the mill. An employee of the Bancroft Corp. of South Paris, Whittemore was welding from a harnessed position when he "collapsed in his harness," according to president Al Bancroft. OSHA investigators went to the mill Tuesday to try to determine the cause of Whittemore's death.

CMP addresses Cushman Hill worries

WOODSTOCK--A letter from Central Maine Power has gone out to Cushman Hill area residents addressing their concerns regarding a new transmission line that will run along an existing line corridor. The residents said at a hearing in April they were worried about the environmental and aesthetic impacts of the new line. A wider right of way would have to be cut to accommodate the new poles. CMP spokesman Betty Nickerson said the company's letter will be followed by a more detailed "alternatives analysis." Alternatives might include, said Nickerson, a single-pole construction rather than the proposed H-frames. But, she said, single poles would be much higher than the H-frame design. Company officials will meet again with residents if they request it, she said. CMP has received municipal permits from all towns affected by the new line. A permit from the Department of Environmental Protection is expected by the fall, according to Nickerson.

Committee appointments

BETHEL--The Bethel Board of Selectmen made the following committee appointment Monday. All votes were unanimous. Airport Authority: Cathy Newell; Appeals Board: Kathy Hooke, Wende Gray; Budget Committee: Rebecca Kendall, Ruth Grover; Pathway Committee: Thomas Zicarelli; Planning Board: Stan Howe, Jack Cross, Robert Everett, Frank Vogt, Dennis Doyon, Jan Baker; Public Safety: Mike Steven; Conservation Commission: Walter Hatch, Jonathan Goldberg, Jacquelyn Cressy.

Post office move dates set

BETHEL--After closing at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, July 25, the Bethel Post Office will move to temporary quarters in the former Rick's Deli in the Casablanca Building in Bethel Station. Boxholders will find their familiar boxes at the new location when it opens Monday morning, but they are asked to facilitate the move by picking up any mail and parcels prior to Saturday's move. The office is being relocated while its present office building is renovated. No target date has been announced for the post office's return to Main Street.

Gunshots, sirens -- yes, crime -- no.

BETHEL--Gunshots fired Wednesday morning on the East Bethel Road did not involve a crime, according to Darren Tripp, Bethel police chief. Shots were indeed fired by a resident behind his home, but they were fired in a safe setting. The marksman, who was taking target practice, alarmed a pipeline worker who spotted the shooter but did not realize what he was up to. A call was made to Tripp, who responded to the scene. The confusion was quickly cleared up.

Post office needs a home

HANOVER--With the Hanover Village Store closed, the United States Postal Service is looking for land to build a new post office. The store closed in April, and the post office, which is located in the rear of the building is now its only tenant, and the USPS faces the prospect of heating the entire building if the post office remains there through the winter. The post office has been located at the store for more than a decade, according to Postmaster Elaine Bonica. The USPS is looking for 20,000 square feet of land, if possible within a quarter mile of the store, according to Terry Brooks, USPS real estate specialist. Landowners have until July 31 to make proposals. Brooks can be reached at 377-2381.

Second prosecutor hired

PARIS--Faced with a caseload that he says is growing "tremendously," Oxford County District Attorney Norm Croteau has hired a second county prosecutor. Richard R. Beauchesne will join Assistant District Attorney Joe O'Connor in the Paris office. O'Connor currently handles 5,000 criminal cases a year, Croteau said.

Federal storm aid not for individuals

AUGUSTA--Federal disaster assistance for those affected by storms and floods between June 13 and July 1 is available only to municipalities, state agencies and eligible nonprofit organizations. The aid is not available to individuals, families, homeowners, renters or businesses, according to officials of the state of Maine and the Federal Emergency Management Agency. "The damage from the June storms was not as extensive as the earlier ice storms, so the level of assistance is more limited," said Steven P. Burgess, state coordinating officer.

From the Bethel Police log:

Advice angers driver

At 9:40 a.m. on July 17 a caller reported she had stopped on the East Bethel Road, waiting to turn, when she saw a dump truck driving very fast. She mouthed the words "slow down" to the driver. The driver stopped and became verbally abusive. The case is under investigation.

Thursday, July 16

At 4:56 p.m. a subject was observed driving southbound on Route 26. Aaron A. Conway, 26, of Bethel was stopped and issued a summons for failure to display a current/valid certificate of inspection, failure to provide evidence of insurance and operating after suspension.

At 8:24 p.m. police received a report that a woman had been assaulted at a business. She had a swollen face, and Bethel Rescue was called to evaluate her. Michael Small of Bethel was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Sheriff's Department, charged with domestic assault.

Saturday, July 18

At 2:15 p.m. a subject was stopped after police had information he had had a probation hold put on him by his probation officer. He was detained and patted down. A pot pipe with residue was found in his pocket. Justin L. Buker, 19, of Bethel was given a summons for drug paraphernalia and released.

Monday, July 20

At 1:33 a.m. police received a call from the Oxford County Sheriff's Office to assist with a domestic dispute at a Newry residence. The male subject had left the residence and fled into the woods in back of the house. Once the female involved was located and in the cruiser the officers cleared without incident.

At 3:36 p.m. police assisted county officers in locating and arresting Philip Snow of Newry at a relative's Bethel residence. He was charged with domestic assault.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

Milfoil is one introduced plant that can quickly spread, clog waterways and crowd out native plants. It is almost impossible to eradicate once it becomes established. This and other undesirable plant life can be quickly transported from lake to lake unknowingly by boaters. Each time you put your boat in the water, remove all plants and plant fragments from your propeller, motor, wet well, trailer rollers, axles and trailer hitches.

Carry a litter bag on your boat and make sure nothing is thrown into the lake. Pick up trash and other obstacles floating in the water. Fishing lines, plastic lures or lead sinkers left in the water could kill fish and waterfowl.

Exhibit

gan to glorify their Colonial ancestors, believing them to be braver, nobler and more industrious than the people they saw around them."

Maine residents responded to the desires of these city people by promoting the state as a region untouched by modern problems."

That theme became part of Maine's 1920 Centennial celebration. Included in a Portland festival was a group of Passamaquoddy Indians camped in an "Indian Village." They displayed their cultural traditions and sold baskets.

Realities

The Passamaquoddy's presence, says the Maine Historical Society account, "reinforced the nostalgic message but presented compelling tensions between fantasy and reality."

William Neptune, the Passamaquoddy governor at the time, was quoted in a July 1920 "Daily Eastern Argus" as saying, "Sixty-five years ago we did not have to make baskets for a living. We hunted, but those days are gone. The white people have stripped us from top to bottom."

As for the treatment of immigrants, some Mainers joined a rejuvenated Ku Klux Klan that targeted Catholics, Jews and Afro-Americans out of fear that foreign influences would "contaminate" Anglo-American society.

The Maine KKK claimed anywhere between 20,000 and 50,000 members in 1924, according to the MHS.

State promotions concealed such problems. And today, said Bennett, "they still gloss over the rough spots." Anyone who comes to view the exhibit, he said, "should have their eyes opened."

The exhibit will run here through

Nov. 30.

The first of many

The large exhibit, said Bennett, signals "the beginning of the change" in the Bethel Historical Society's effort to become a major historical society in the state.

The society recently purchased The Elms building adjacent to the Moses Mason House, and has undertaken a capital campaign to fund the building and many activities planned for it.

A research library, classrooms, more exhibit areas, a climate-controlled, fireproof storage room for documents and other historical artifacts, and added staff are among the plans. The society will have access to The Elms property next April.

In the meantime, said Bennett, the current exhibit is "a hint of what's to come."

Woodstock

need a locked facility, he said. Maine law prohibits treatment centers or schools from locking their doors."

Lehman acknowledged there had been no problems with children trying to leave the Sweetser School without permission.

David Berensen, director of the adult sex offender program for the Ohio Department of Corrections, said, "You don't locate this type of thing in a heavily wooded site." He described the behavior of adolescent sex offenders as "anti-social, criminal and violent. The proposed facility, 'doesn't belong in a recreation area ... the adolescents will pose a threat to the community and it will be difficult to protect the public's health and safety.'"

"If I had a child ... I would no longer live in Rangeley," he said.

The Madores had proposed to staff the school in a 3:1 or 2:1 ratio, depending on the time of day. And, they said, the county sheriff's department saw "no problem" with providing coverage.

The students, said Kathleen Madore, would have a choice whether to attend the school -- and therefore would have no reason to run away, as some residents had worried. The students could simply call someone to come and get them, she said.

(Concerns about police response time to the remote Woodstock site have also been voiced to selectmen here. And the Madores also plan staff, rather than security, coverage in Woodstock.)

Armand Madore also operated a similar Dixfield facility for six 7-to-11-year-olds. A Department of Human Services official told the Highlander in 1997 that there "have been a number of complaints," but the facility had come into "substantial compliance."

Not designated a school

The LURC permit denial in June of 1997 was "largely based on a staff recommendation which noted that the 'proposed residential facility,' which the staff did not term a 'school' is not an acceptable use within a Residential Development Subdistrict," according to the Highlander.

An allowable school would serve and be an integral part of the community, according to Brian Kent, who helped author the applicable LURC rules.

Secondly, "the applicant has not demonstrated by substantial evidence that public health, safety and general welfare (of the facility's clients) will be adequately protected."

The vote by the commissioners was unanimous.

LURC interpretation "unique"

In responding to the staff's negative recommendation, the Madores' counsel, Helen L. Edmonds, argued that "whether or not the proposed facility will be used to teach students skills aside from the traditional academic pursuits is not relevant to its fundamental characteristics as a school."

She also disputed a further statement by Kent regarding the term "school." He had said, "The facility, if it were deemed a school, would not serve plantation residents. To serve the local population was the intent of guidelines for an allowable public, private or parochial school within the subdistrict."

Edmonds said that argument was inconsistent with LURC regulations and "with other permissible uses that service people who are not residents of the area, specifically parks, camp sites, churches and cemeteries."

"In stretching to find a basis upon which to deny the Madores' application, staff has proposed a unique interpretation of the commission's regulations, and one which would set a precedent which is incongruous with the explicit language of the regulations and the nature of rural development in Maine," she wrote in a brief.

The court appeal that followed was based "on several issues, including the claim that 'the commission exceeded its authority by basing its decision on criteria not within its jurisdiction; that the commission 'subjected' the Madores to 'an unconstitutionally vague review standard' of public health, safety and welfare, and that the decision violates the federal Fair Housing Act by discriminating against the types of students the facility will house."

The decision affirming the Superior Court ruling was handed down July 17.

A call from the Citizen to Kathleen Madore seeking comment on the Rangeley proposal was not returned.

In Woodstock, a group of citizens recently circulated a petition opposing a facility in that town. They planned to submit it to the state, which must license such a facility.

Sandy Dearborn, licensing supervisor for the state's Auditing, Contracting and Licensing Service Center, said Wednesday that to her knowledge, no petition had been received.

She also said the license application was still being processed, and with approval from the Department of Education also required, "it could take a little time."

Dearborn was asked about the criteria for license approval. She said such a facility's executive director -- in this case Armand Madore -- would, for instance, need the required degrees and "be of good moral character."

Dearborn also confirmed that complaints had been filed against the Dixfield facility in late 1996 -- and that they had been addressed to her department's satisfaction.

Among the findings of the investigation: temperatures in some of the clients' rooms were "very warm," because the windows had been kept closed in cases of "elopement risk" (running away); one staff person had been left to provide care for three clients, rather than the 1:2 ratio required for that time of day; staff had raised their voices to others, belittled others or made veiled/overt threats to discharge clients.

Other issues discovered in the course of the investigation included: relief staff not trained in passive physical restraint (hands-on control methods used if a client became out-of-control); and failure to notify the department that a primary clinician was not available for five weeks for counseling therapy for clients.

Woodstock: no regulations

Woodstock officials have maintained they have no jurisdiction over the Madores' plans. Vern Maxfield, Woodstock town manager, said Wednesday the town's ordinances cover residential homes only, with no regulations governing businesses.

The Planning Board did issue a building permit in November for the construction of partitions and new stairs for the building. The Madores made the application by mail, and never attended a meeting, Maxfield said.

THE RESULTS OF POSITIVE TRAINING--Dascha, a four-year-old German Shepherd, jumps an obstacle on Fran Bernier's command. Bernier uses only positive reinforcement -- food and praise -- in teaching her dogs obedience and other skills.

doesn't work," she said. Another trick is to teach a behavior that's incompatible with an undesirable behavior.

If a dog is prone to chewing on a guest's pant leg, for instance, Fran teaches the animal it must pick up a toy in its mouth before greeting someone at the door. Chewing on a pant leg then becomes difficult with a mouthful of toy.

Obedience can be fun

Fran patiently uses the techniques to teach basic obedience, as well as the skills used in Schutzhund.

The sport, according to a brochure describing it, "is intended to demonstrate the dog's intelligence and utility. As a working trial, Schutzhund measures the dog's mental stability, endurance, structural efficiency, ability to scent, willingness to work, courage and trainability. It is a sport enjoyed by persons who join together in a camaraderie born of their common interest in working with their dogs."

Some of the dogs may also do search and rescue work, Fran said.

The Berniers help organize an annual Schutzhund regional trial held in the fall in Bethel. The dogs must track a scent, accomplish a series of obedience heeling exercises, and demonstrate protection skills by finding, guarding and "biting" a person known as a decoy.

The different phases of the trial are held at various locations, including Telstar High School and fields on private property.

Dascha is the Bernier's Schutzhund competitor currently. Argus is in the early stages of his education.

"Right now we're socializing him," said Fran. "He has to be good around people and other male dogs. We've spent hours at L.L. Bean, and we've been all over the country hanging out, watching life happen, so he doesn't react. The last five weeks we've spent more time in hotel rooms than at home."

Their stops have included Seattle, where they competed in the Sieger Show, a big German Shepherd conformation event with hundreds of dogs. Argus finished fifth in his class.

Finding homes

Fran's love of German Shepherds does not extend to breeding them. Instead, she's an advocate of the German Shepherd Rescue New England organization, which finds homes for unwanted shepherds.

She's seen dogs that have been abused, and would rather see shepherd-lovers' efforts go into rescuing and placing them than into propagation.

Fran recently practiced what she preaches by having Dascha -- an ideally breedable dog -- spayed.

GSRNE, said Fran, "is always looking for foster homes."

Anyone interested in the effort may contact the organization at P.O. Box 299, Wayland, Mass.

that would affect the expenditure side of the budget -- so the five-year budget will look out of balance, but the individual yearly budgets that will be submitted as we go along will all balance."

Schlieper also questioned why the runway lengthening project and operational budget were being submitted to the Budget Committee -- since that committee has not in recent years reviewed such matters.

The selectmen have the authority to approve the airport budget, she noted. Why then, she asked, "is it necessary to have the Budget Committee look at funds that do not come out of the General Fund?"

"To open it to the Budget Committee will tie our hands in the future," Schlieper maintained.

But the selectmen have suggested that getting Budget Committee blessing for the airport budget and expansion might help sell the expansion to voters.

"I don't understand why you're hesitant to have them review it," said Selectman Bob Chadbourne. "I think trying to cut the Budget Committee out of the loop could backfire."

Schlieper replied: "I'm concerned about a committee with a closed mind."

Engineering cost up

Roger Bedard of Wright-Pierce consulting engineers, project manager for the wastewater treatment plant upgrade, told the selectmen Monday that the current contract between the town and his firm did not contain enough money to cover all the engineering work that will be required for the project.

Bedard attributed the shortfall to increased demands for construction management and oversight, brought on by unexpectedly poor soils, unanticipated hydraulic problems at the plant, the complexity of the bidding process (due to delays arising from the Bethel Station job-creation problem) and to enhanced computer technology that was added to the project in order to save money in power costs.

And, he said, "This is a larger project than we envisioned when we negotiated the contract."

Bedard projected that the increased expenses could add $117,000 to the $287,881 the town has already contracted to spend on the project.

The alternative, he said, would be for the town to pick up more of the administrative and oversight functions -- something Town Manager Phil Tarr said would probably not be in the town's long-term interest, given the highly technical nature of the project.

The selectmen, who have gone back to voters twice as the cost of the upgrade project increased, were not pleased at the prospect of asking them for still more money.

"This should have been brought up when we went to the town for the $1.9 million," said Chadbourne.

Swan Hill Road

At the request of residents of Swan Hill Road, the selectmen have agreed to ask voters at the Aug. 10 special Town Meeting (see sidebar) to reopen the road to winter maintenance.

The selectmen are also considering asking for $8,000 to clear back trees and brush along two-plus miles of the road, and for an additional $9,000 to rebuild approximately 300 yards of the road, where it joins with the Intervale Road.

The rebuilding, said Tarr, would be the first step in a three-year process of bringing the road back to the point where it could be kept up through normal maintenance.

Pathway and Bridge

The selectmen Monday also approved a proposal from the town's Pathway Committee to enter into a contract with Taylor Engineering of Auburn to design a multi-purpose recreational bridge over the Androscoggin River, as well as the proposed pathway through Bethel Station.

The contract is for between $67,000 and $74,000, to come from federal grant money already secured by the town.

That would leave a balance of approximately $200,000 available for construction of the pathway and other expenses.

The proposed bridge is now expected to cost in the neighborhood of $400,000 to $500,000, according to town project assistant Don Murphy.

That money, he said, could probably come from additional federal funds that are becoming increasingly available for alternative transportation infrastructure.

The Budget Committee will also be asked Tuesday for its input on the contract, although the final decision on the matter rests with the selectmen.

If the contract is approved, Murphy said, actual construction on the pathway is expected to begin next spring.

STOWELL REUNION

On July 4, Martha Stowell hosted the annual reunion for descendants of George and Harriett Stowell at her home on Mayville Road in Bethel.

Grilled meats, casseroles, salads, watermelon, desserts and beverages were enjoyed throughout the day. The weather was exceptional and the notorious Maine mosquitoes were present in numbers even the oldest guests felt were unrivaled. Many of the attendees also enjoyed the art show on the common during the day, as well as the fireworks display at the Bethel Inn later in the evening.

Attending the festivities were honored guests Esther Littlefield Farnum (90 years young), grand aunt to the Stowell children; Janet Swift Bowers and Carolyn Swift Vaughan, aunts to the Stowell children; George P. Stowell III and his wife Mary, of Falmouth; Suzanne Stowell Bartlett and her husband Keith of Bethel, their son Jeffrey Stowell Bartlett, his wife Karen and children Zachary Keith and Molly Joy of Norfolk, Mass.; Michael Swift Stowell and his wife Jean of Lovettsville, Va., his daughter Suzanne Stowell Zoolack and her husband Ron, their sons Zachariah Stowell and Izaiah Thomas of South Weymouth, Mass.; Sara Stowell Carson and her friend Robert Libby of Oxford, her sons Jonathan Head, his wife Jennifer, their son Joshua Paul from West Bethel and Jeremy Head, his wife Sheri and their daughter Crystelle Mary from Albany; Jonathan Stowell and his wife Rowena, their son Nathan from Shirley, Mass.; the hostess Martha Stowell, her daughter Michelle Sprague, her husband Richard and their children Tina Lynn and Andrew James of Bethel; Andrew Stowell and his wife Marlene of Jackman; Brian Stowell, his wife Linda and their daughter Rachel of West Bethel and her friend Tim Adams; Rebecca Stowell Lloyd, her husband Albert and their son Michael James of Rumford.

Other guests included Mrs. Dorothy Libby of Yarmouth; Mrs. Roberta Stowell of Harpers Ferry, W. Va.; Mrs. Sheila Head of West Bethel, her daughter and son-in-law Jane and Robert Rottari and their daughters Leah and Olivia of New Gloucester and Ms. Aline Dupont of Portland.

A good time was had by all!

Bethel House

by Ruth Cummings

Pastor Rick was back in the pulpit at Bethel Alliance Church on July 12 after an absence of two weeks. We had Communion on the 12th instead of the usual first Sunday of the month. His sermon topic was "Praying Jesus' Way." Peggy Mowery was back with her flute to join Judy Webster at the piano for the music. As usual Shane Clark led the singing. The ladies' trio, Andrea Bennett, Nancy Fox and Nancy Hansen had a special song they sang. After church we had a social hour and coffee, cold drinks and snacks were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morton and family of Green Bank, W. Va., are spending their vacation in the Bethel area visiting relatives and friends.

Charlotte Cole and Bob Cole put up a mailbox for Bob recently and he now gets his mail at 220 Vernon Street instead of a post office box.

Robert Cole had dinner with Charlotte Cole on the 13th and then they shopped at Wal-Mart.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Newell spent Saturday night with his parents and then left Sunday morning for North Carolina on their honeymoon. They will reside at Kents Hill where Alec has a teaching position.

Rachel Thorne from Alabama arrived on July 11th to spend a few weeks with her parents, Nancy and Sonny Cummings, of the Sunday River Road, Bethel.

Ruth Sorofman of Rochelle, Ga., also arrived on the 11th to spend a few weeks with Sonny and Nancy. Ruth is a sister to Nancy. Nancy and Sonny met Ruth and Rachel at the airport in Portland when they came to Maine. Ruth and Nancy visited me on Monday evening.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nathan Seckinger, Ethan and Jedd arrived on July 13 to spend a few weeks in Maine. They are staying with John Kallis at his Songo home.

Sonny and Nancy Cummings picked up Nancy's brother Earl O. "George" Cummings at the Portland airport on July 15 so he could spend some time with them. George lives in San Diego, Calif.

On Tuesday, July 14, my brother-in-law, Robert Cole, stopped by for me and we went to the church at Locke Mills and there we met Charlotte Cole and Sylvia Clark.

We all went in Charlotte's car to Victorian Villa Boarding Home in Canton and visited with Amy Hanscom. Charlotte played and sang for Amy and we all talked a lot and someone brought us each in some ice cream. Amy has been living at Victorian Villa since July 2. She previously was living at Rumford Community Home, where she had been since Sept. 1, 1989, when it was called Cozy Inn.

When we left there, Charlotte suggested we go to the Chickadee and get something to eat. We went, but did not eat; it was closed for the day. So we started toward home and Sylvia suggested Yuli's in Turner. We stopped there and really had a very nice meal. Sylvia and I had baked haddock but Bob and Charlotte had shrimp. We had a very pleasant waitress. Full of fun. We all enjoyed our meal very much.

Victorian Villa seems to be a very nice place. The windows open like regular house windows and I think she can get a better circulation of air. She has a nice room and it is larger than her last one so she has more room for her things. Of course it is not really home yet after being in Rumford for eight and one-half years. She had to leave so many nice friends. They are very good to her in Canton. One thing that I saw that did not seem right was that she had no pitcher of water handy like she did at Rumford. To me that is not right in this hot weather, and when you are supposed to drink so much water. She did have a nice view out her window. There was a house nearby and they had lovely flowers and also a black cat to watch when it decided to come out and walk on the lawn.

Amy had just been to Dr. Wolfe yesterday and he had performed laser on her right eye and she said they put in a lot of drops. Her vision was not as good when we were there yesterday as it had been before the laser, but I know just one drop can blur for some time and she said they just kept putting in different drops. I certainly hope her eyesight returned to normal and I feel certain that it did.

The roommate she had when she first went in there had to go to the hospital and was returning July 14, but will be returning to the nursing home part so Amy will be having a new roommate.

The Mollyockett Day Parade this year was one of the nicest I have ever seen in the town of Bethel. Several of us from the Bethel House sat out on the lawn and watched it.

Nathan, Joyce, Ethan and Jedd Seckinger all called on me Saturday afternoon. Nathan put up a hummingbird feeder that I had received as a birthday gift.

Seven of us Bethel House residents sat up on the upstairs veranda and watched the lovely fireworks display on Mollyockett.

Maine Chapter 7 of the International 1918 Club met July 11 at Martindale Country Club in Auburn to celebrate members' 80th birthdays; 110 members and guests attended. Present officers are: president, Violet Swain of East Andover; vice president, William Smith, Andover; secretary, Mary Philbrick, Kennebunkport; treasurer, Robert Webb, Westbrook.

Betty Moore's daughter, Sharon and her two girls, Tamie and Sahra, spent a week in Andover recently. They were able to pick some blueberries before returning home.

Tracy Dymont of Glenburn is spending the summer with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Meisner, and she will also spend some time with her grandmother Dymont in Rumford.

Notice to all who purchased an East Andover Community Club cookbook -- the blueberry roll recipe on page 49 by Glenna Allen needs to have 1 egg and 1/2 cup milk added to the list of ingredients. With blueberry season arriving, we wouldn't want any failures.

Guests last week with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain were two of her high school classmates and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beek of Lake Oswego, Ore., and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jonassen of south Windham. The classmates graduated from Lawrence High School in Fairfield in 1935 and were born in 1918.

Get well wishes are extended to Marion Bodwell of Bethel, formerly of Andover, who fell recently and suffered a broken hip. And to Joanne Palmer of Andover, who suffered a broken ankle in a fall.

Robert Cuff Jr. was listed recently on the dean's list for the last quarter at SMTC in South Portland.

Jack Williams of Weston, Mass., spent a few days at the "Log Cabin." He was joined by two sons, Guy of Texas and Eddie of Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain were in Benton and Troy on July 16 taking care of cemetery plots. They visited with Marguerite Scott in Unity. She is the widow of Robert Scott, a former Gould Academy teacher. They also visited with Mr. and Robert Bartley. She is a former member of the 1918 Club.

Don't forget to get your Old Home Day T-shirts and buttons from local establishments. Button prize lists are also available.

Happy wedding anniversary to Terry and Phil Merrill and also Leon and Rosalie Poland.

Tim and Patty Poland have been enjoying a vacation from their work this past week.

Ian Monzo spent the night with his grandmother, Tommy Poland, Saturday night.

Rachel Curtis and family have been enjoying some time at the Abbott's Beach with Rachel's mother, Tracy Poland and kids.

Amy and Logan Bru are visiting for a while with Amy's parents, Phil and Terry Merrill.

The hot weather is getting a little much. I'm looking forward to some nice, cool (not cold) Maine weather soon.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that at the July meeting he read poems by writers Edna St. Vincent Millay and E.A. Robinson. It was decided the annual picnic in August will be at the home of Ruth Cox, who will also give tours of her private museum. On Aug. 15, the annual History Day will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be food for sale, crafts and other interesting things to see.

THE MERRILL, SPRINGER COMPANY, which made spools, turnings, and dowels, once stood on land now owned by the Bethel Station. It is shown above in the early years of this century. ## Mason Township

by Richard Grover
We have been busy this week trying to do interesting "stuff" with Shakeem, our temporary

"adoptee" from the Bronx. We've been camping, hiking, canoeing, fishing, swimming, biking, hauling firewood with the tractor, tending the animals and just getting acquainted with the wonders of the natural environment (frogs, snakes, toads, fishing worms, mosquitoes, and making that squawking noise by blowing across blades of grass held between the thumbs). We left him at Gary and Gail Wight's last Thursday evening so he could join Gary and their Bronx adoptee, Mikael, for Friday swimming and hiking in Newry. There, Gary showed him a live moose and got them all wet in an errant thunderstorm in Grafton Notch. It's been fun, but 'twill be a relief not to have to try to think of interesting activities every time he seems bored -- you know the attention span of a nine-year old.

The other night we stopped at Brother Rupert's home (Dave Hanscom's house) with Shakeem when the conversation turned to how dark it could be here, as opposed to the many lights in the city. After several examples were discussed, Rupert mentioned that friends Ted and Gertrude visited one dark evening recently. After they had been there a couple hours, Dave came home and informed them that Ted had left the car lights on, and that he (Dave) had shut them off. A little later, Ted suggested to Gertrude that she should check and see if the car would still start before it got too much later. She went outside and was gone for some time, before returning inside. When someone asked why it took her so long, she replied, "It was so dark I couldn't find the car." Of course, everybody laughed. Then, when it came time to go home, Gertrude asked that they turn off the outside lights so Ted could see how dark it really was.

At the shop where I work, there is a tradition that everybody gets a nickname of some type, most of which come from comic strip characters, but other incidents trigger other, more interesting names. We have Odie, B W, Hobbs, Beanie, Eeyore, Snake and I am referred to as "Loon." Last summer, a new fella, who is attending Central Maine Technical School, came to work between semesters. After he had been there a couple weeks, he noted the nicknames in use and asked Hobbs how guys acquired the monikers.

It just so happens that a joke had been going around the shop at the time: A young Indian brave asked his father, "How did you decide on the names you picked for us, your children?" The father replied, "When your older sister was born, the first thing I saw when I stepped out of the tepee the next morning was a single little white cloud floating across the sky, and she was named White Cloud. When your older brother was born, the first thing I saw when I stepped out of the tepee was a huge black bear running across the clearing, and he became Running Bear. Anyway, why do you ask, Two Dogs Mating?"

Well, guess who is now known as "Two Dogs."

Tent 17 gathered at the Grange Hall on Monday, July 13. Since only four members came, no meeting was held, but it was decided to have a picnic for the August meeting.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens date has been confirmed as Aug. 6 for a one and one-half hour cruise. The boat leaves at Cook's Landing on Bailey's Island at noon. You may either take a lunch to eat on the boat or eat elsewhere before or after you get back. Snacks and cold drinks may be brought on the boat. Each person is responsible for their own transportation. Raymond Swan and Ernestine Riley each have room for three; if you need a ride, call them. Shawn Crockett visited his grandparents, Ken and Alice Hoyt, Wednesday and Thursday.

At the July meeting of the Woodstock Historical Society, Curator Larry Billings read poems by Longfellow, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Edwin Arlington Robinson. It was decided the annual picnic will be at the home of Rlfth Cox. Also History Day will be Aug. 15, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be a flea market, crafts, food for sale, old autos and museum tours. All kinds of events are planned. The society also plans to have some more copies of Ruby Emery's "History of Woodstock" printed by then. President Barbara Hathaway and Kathleen Bean watched the museum in the afternoon and had many visitors. Irene Redman gave a picture to the museum.

The society offers the area the best exhibits and programs possible. It is a significant historical and cultural center in Oxford County.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham

The sun has finally come out after a short rain, following two days of sun. Is it really summer? My lungs think so. Although the sun has been shining brightly, the ozone has been high here in the valley. Even though I am anxious to try out our newly paved road and see if it improves my bicycle riding, the ozone-laden air has winded me and left me too breathless to do much. The lettuce looks splendid, as does the kale. The spinach, not too surprisingly, is beginning to wilt. At least I got to eat some of it -- actually, I got to eat most of what grew, it is just that the sudden summer heat caught it and that is that. The chard is still coming along, and I have a fine crop of basil growing. Usually I buy basil plants, but this year I found some seed and planted it. It seems to be doing just fine. Wild mustard is also flourishing. Perhaps I'll use that in my salads instead of spinach.

Mollycodd Day was a gorgeous day. After Friday's awful ozone heat, I was worried. I, at least, would not have been able to enjoy the festivities had the ozone not been dissipated by the thunderstorm.

And what a storm it was. It actually hit here twice -- once in the afternoon and once in the evening. The second time the storm seemed to be really close. The lightning was ever so bright and the thunder loud enough to make a grown man jump. It did the trick, however, and Saturday was sunny with a delightful breeze to keep us all cool.

I watched the parade, bought some raffle tickets, and since there was so little to eat on the common, except hot dogs, I went home for lunch.

That was convenient, because I went to Artist's Bridge for the duck race. I had never been to the race before. It was quite well attended, although parking was at a minimum. It was great fun to watch those little fake rubber duckies float down the river, some forward, some backward, and some on their side. It is hard to root for "your" duck because the numbers are on the bottom and one cannot tell which is which. Even the ones traveling on their side were too far down in the water for the number to show. It was fun, anyway, and everyone gathered on the bridge for the listing of the winning ducks. My duck was not one of the top 32, and I didn't get to win the canoe.

I then returned to the common for the fiddlers' contest and was informed by a friend that I had won the Mahoosuc Land Trust raffle. I didn't believe her at first, but others echoed the same news, and I can't wait to get my prize. This makes two years in a row that I have won a raffle. Three prizes, if you count the Norway Savings Bank open house raffle. Maybe I should start buying raffle tickets.

To return to our road here in the valley, I am waiting impatiently for the lines to be painted on the road. I'm anxious to see how they're going to designate the bike lane, and if it'll make a difference. After the road was repaved, I was walking along it and was almost run over by two aggressive out-of-state drivers who insisted on driving all the way to the right, leaving no room for me to walk. That also means that it left no room for bicyclists, either. We shall see...

It was a hot, humid week with little or no breeze coming in off the lake. It was a bit stifling. That is the adult version. The kids' version is that it's the middle of summer. The fishing, swimming, canoeing and hiking are great. That's really "cool." The heat wave ended Friday night with a cleansing thunder and lightning storm, which left a nice, dry air mass. Saturday was a great day for weddings. Joe and Penny Bernier held a wedding on their land at the top of Back Street. The view is spectacular up there and a wonderful backdrop for a wedding. The bride was Lucille Buteau and the groom was John Sweat. Penny performed the marriage ceremony. There were 80 guests present.

Another wedding took place in Rumford at St. Athanasius and St. John's Church. Janet Hamann and Ken Fysh were the bride and groom. It was a lovely wedding ceremony with many family members and friends present. Ken had a knee replacement six weeks ago. He surprised us when he danced several dances with his bride.

Joan and Dave Miller have arrived to spend their vacation at their summer home at Birch Point. Their house was formerly located on Mettalu (Dutton) Island on the lake. It was brought down the lake, over the ice, many years ago. It was placed on its present location when Mettalu Lodge was razed in preparation for High Errol Dam, which never happened.

On sick call this week is Walter Stanczyk. Walt had surgery on his knee and is recovering well. Having had the same procedure performed on his other knee, he was well versed in the exercise program for rehabilitation. Walt is our tax collector, treasurer, etc., and has not missed a beat on his duties to the town in spite of his gimpy knee.

Mary and Larry Davis spent the week at their camp on the lake.

Elsie Douglass reports that there has been a break-in at the family homestead in Upton. Elsie raised her family in that home and we all feel badly about this situation.

Virginia Williamson was in Bar Harbor on Saturday attending the wedding of her granddaughter, Pamela Ann Williamson, to Rhori D. Johnson. Rhori is the anchor-man at KLAST TV in Las Vegas. The couple are spending their honeymoon on the coast of Maine.

We are still in the process of finding the best price for repairing the bell tower in the church. We have received three generous donations and others are promised.

Elsie Fuller spent several days at her friend, Norma Collingwood's home.

Lionel and Jeanette Roy are having a great deal of difficulty dealing with thieving woodchucks in their garden. The animals are voracious cabbage eaters and they haven't left much for harvest. I guess it will be "corned beef sans cabbage" this fall.

The Ladies Aid Yard and Bake Sale has been canceled for Saturday, July 25. It will be rescheduled at a later date.

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

The winds have ceased to whistle through the hills so the waves on the pond have died down and the sun has peeked out. For how long? It has been that way all day, July 11.

Clouds seem to float together above the still waters.

There was warmth in sun, while it lasted. The exquisite notes of a purple finch's song floated like a pale thread through the stillness. New brooks are singing a loud song or talking softly to the pond waters. A pair of robins on the lawn is digging for meat rations and keep their eyes on me. Prying into the heart of a rose, a ruby-throated hummingbird is busy. The world at this time is drugged with silence.

I think I can almost hear time, as it flies by on rustling wings, dropping me away into the years.

The sun blazing over the hills pours its rays down unrelentingly. A time like this holds everything in its grip. Walking or working is as if I am enclosed in a sheath of invisible fire and the stones burn at my feet. The kind of day seems better than the many cloudy, rainy and foggy days of last week. Those were complaining days.

The play of sunset colors is beginning to move us into night. The calm of change has begun. When the last of the sun has gone, dropping behind the mountains and into a crimson abyss all that will remain, distant mammoth evergreens in a forest frame.

Wyman Reunion

The Curtis family, Albert Sr., Marie and Rena went camping in Eustis for the weekend of July 11. Clis and Steve Cogswell showed up Friday night with Lillian and Glenn Strait, their daughter Melanine and granddaughter Kelsey. We enjoyed another rainy weekend. Sunday morning Walter, Laurie and grandson Matthew showed up in time for breakfast out over the open fire.

We packed up and went out to the picnic area there, at Cathedral Pines, to join other members of the Wyman family for their 60th reunion. Colista Cogswell brought the meeting to order after everybody enjoyed a picnic lunch. Lillian read the secretary and treasurer report.

There was something different at the reunion this year. Raymond Heikkinen and daughter Amber showed up; someone we hadn't seen for years.

This year we also had T-shirts to buy with the 60th Thomas Wyman family reunion printed on them. Twenty-seven people enjoyed the day, with an auction to end the fun. "On the way back home we saw two moose and a lot of beautiful scenery." -- Rena Curtis.

Locke Mills

by Lorraine Larson

I wonder if there was a hidden agenda in the printing of the wrong answers to the crosswords last week. If so, yes, some of us do them, look forward to them in fact. And, yes, there were answers there; it is just that no one said to what puzzle they belonged. Once I do a puzzle and check its accuracy, I forget them, so I would not know if I'd seen the answers before to another puzzle. In fact, I've been known to do a puzzle that I did a month ago and had just as much trouble with it the second time around. I do, after a while, realize that, hey, I've done this before, but I have the thing mostly done by the time mind engages brain, so to speak.

Lorraine and Andy Larson visited Juanita Korhonen at the Korhonen home in Pinhook on Tuesday. They are doing some repair work on their house, such as replacing an old roof and a side wall. The rain last week set them back a bit, she said. It not only slowed the work, it damaged some already done. No one needs that. They also had five grandchildren ages 5 through 10 visiting there along with the parents. Phil celebrated a birthday Saturday, so it has been a busy time for them. And I have not yet mentioned all the gardening.

Debbie Brown tells me she is a grandmother. She even was present at the birth and "didn't faint or get sick or anything." John Franklin Walker was born Sunday, July 12, at 6:48 p.m. at Stephens Memorial Hospital. He weighed a hefty 8 pounds, 7 ounces. Parents, Tracy and Toby Walker, are said to be holding up well and very happy with their new son.

Gerry Shimamura and Lorraine Larson were in Lewiston Thursday doing some shopping and seeing Lorraine's doctor. Am happy to report the bunch in front of the ear has apparently dissolved.

Andy and I celebrated our first wedding anniversary Sunday, July 12. We didn't do anything special; since the accident I had sort of put a kibosh to any plans we had for the summer. Even the ice storm put its two cents in, as the cake we saved in the freezer did not survive. The temperature in the freezer is much lower than the temperature was during the ice storm so the cake would not stay frozen. I know this was a good thing for the people trying to stay warm. The disaster would have been much worse with lower temperatures so I'm not complaining. And, anyway, it is more important that we and our marriage survive than that the cake survives.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. I was hot today and wanted to be lazy and not write a column, but that wouldn't be fair to you, would it? So here goes.

Albert E. Nelson, Jr. and Doug Lothrop were only two of a bunch of people from Stoneham and area who went to the big races at Loudon, N.H., this past weekend. It was hot there, but they all reported having a good time.

Lindsey and Jenna Bernard from Seaford, Va., have been visiting their grandparents, Albert and Eleanor Nelson, while Lindsey goes up to Deepwood Farms for a horse-riding trail program for three days. Molly Nelson is working there at the farm this summer.

First it's too much rain and snow it's too much hot!

Diane Cody Niemi from Santa Fe, N.M., has been in the area here and visiting her folks, Lois and Eddie Niemi.

I was very sorry to learn that Russell Yates is not going to write his column anymore in the Bethel Citizen. I enjoyed reading his column.

Jackie Flynn and family have arrived at the Beach House for the summer. Jackie had a hip operation and she must wear a brace until the beginning of September.

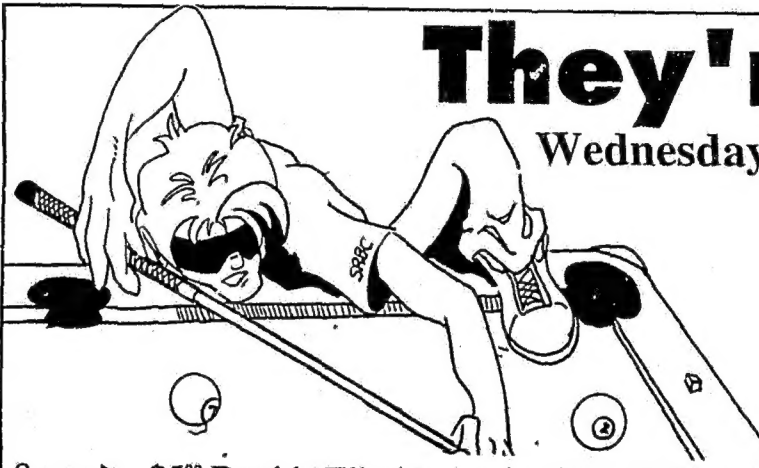

Kelly Flynn has a summer job in Massachusetts and will be up to visit at the end of the month.

Liz and Chris Abreu are anxiously awaiting the arrival of their first child due in early January. Jenny Flynn and Chris Coleman have been fixing up Kate's house and things look good. Karen and Ray Mooney are visiting with their three young boys. Cathy and Jay Cornetta and their son are coming to stay at the Turtle Hut for two weeks. Cindy and Kevin Lyons are visiting with their two sons, Daniel, Christopher, David, Anthony, Eric and Ryan have spent so much time in the water, we think they'll become fish by the fall.

Kate Flynn is doing well. She has been in the hospital this past week with a cracked knee, after a slight fall. She should be out soon and back to her new routine out in Haines, Ore.

Carolyn Heino is still in the Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway and would probably enjoy cards and visits.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

Sudbury Canada Days, the Bethel Historical Society's summer heritage festival, will be held this year Aug. 7 to 9 and feature a wide variety of activities reflecting life in a bygone era. Among the events planned are horse shoe, badminton and croquet tournaments, old-time variety show, children's games from the past, traditional crafts, log driver's bean supper, flower show, art show, logging and farming exhibits, showing of historical videos, and much more. Anyone wishing further information or willing to volunteer, should call the society office at 824-2908 or use e-mail: (history@bdc.bethel.me.us).

Volunteers are still needed to serve on the panel for the Aug. 6 meeting to discuss memories of the Bethel Inn in honor of the 85th anniversary of its completion in 1913. Anyone having memories to share is encouraged to call the society office.

From the

Bethel Rotary Club

Recently, the Bethel Rotary Club held its annual Auction/Flea Market and its third annual Golf Tournament. Our 11th auction was the most successful ever, with over 200 enthusiastic supporters. Rotary Club members worked diligently before, during and after the auction. Special thanks to Rotarian David Murphy for his tireless efforts and his enthusiasm and charisma as an auctioneer.

There were 19 foursomes that participated in the Golf Tournament, easily surpassing last year's event. Thanks to all who participated as golfers and event organizers. Special thanks to the Bethel Inn and Country Club and title sponsor Northeast Bank. Other major contributors were Coca Cola, Shipyard Brewery, Sunday River Brewery, Broadcast Marketing, Yarmouth Rotary Fishing Tournament, Wild River Realty and Mike Stevens & Associates.

The proceeds of these events, as always, support many community projects including scholarship funds, senior citizen dinner, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, Bethel Library, Bethel Historical Society and many other projects we support annually.

From the ## W.M.N.F.

In an effort to meet the needs of Maine citizens, White Mountain National Forest District Ranger George Pozzuto or an assistant ranger will be spending each Tuesday at the Evans Notch Visitor Center in Bethel. He will be available to meet with any citizen regarding any National Forest issue. Anyone interested in meeting with him can call ahead for an appointment or is welcome to drop in between 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. For an appointment, call George Pozzuto at 603-466-2713, ext. 210 or leave a message locally at 824-2134. The Evans Notch Visitor Center is located at 18 Mayville Road, just east of the bridge on Route 2.

For the last several years the White Mountain National Forest has been in the process of reorganizing administrative functions. "We have been striving to balance the reality of shrinking budgets with our goal of providing the best customer service and natural resource management possible," says Pozzuto.

Cost-cutting efforts shifted personnel from Bethel to Gorham, N.H. Pozzuto oversees the management of the Androscoggin Ranger District which includes about half of the 50,000 acres of national forest land in Maine.

"We realize that it can be an inconvenience for the public we serve to travel to Gorham, N.H., to conduct business or meet with staff to discuss National Forest issues," says Pozzuto. "I look forward to meeting with Maine citizens to discuss management of the White Mountain National Forest."

Scribner's Mill festival

Scribner's Mill, located on the Crooked River just south of Bolster's Mill in the Town of Harrison, will once again be transformed into a bustling turn of the century mill and homestead site on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 1 and 2.

The highlight for this year's event will be the construction of the riverside granite foundation and the timber framing for the mill. The interest generated from this annual event over the past five years has provided Scribner's Mill Preservation the materials, funds, and volunteer man power to start the reconstruction process.

Scribner's Mill is located off the beaten path in the Crooked River Valley. Visitors will hear the hum of the old machinery working to turn out dry barrel parts, shingles, clapboards and apple boxes. Around the mill during the two-day event there will be blacksmithing, horse-shoeing, oxen twitching logs and timber framing.

There will be tours of the 1850 homestead, where quilting, weaving, spinning, chair caning, rug hooking, basketry, bee keeping, tole painting, the making of soap, butter, ice cream, brooms, pressed flowers and the art of paper mache will be demonstrated. Once again participants will have an opportunity to take a chance on winning a quilt made by the Scribner sisters.

Visitors will find early mill machinery and tools displayed in the barn. In the old mill office building there will be a special display of mill pictures and post cards.

In the mill pond area members of the Maine Antique Power, Truck and Tractor Association will show and demonstrate their antique equipment. Maine Antique Tractor Association will be sponsoring tractor skill trails. Returning this year will be the two operational gas powered Lombard traction engines owned by Paul and Raymond Brenton of N. Vassalboro.

There will be supervised children's activities in and around the corn shed. This year the children can participate in a checkers tournament, make pine cone fire starters, learn old time crafts, enjoy an old fashion pillow fight (on a log of course), and milk a goat. There will be free horse drawn wagon rides.

Matthew Heintz, the "Northwoods Balladeer" will be on hand to entertain the young at heart with his stories and ballads of Maine.

On Saturday there will be ox team logging demonstrations in the morning and music by a Jug Band in the afternoon.

On Sunday the Model T Ford Touring Club will parade through Scribner's Mill and the Harrison Hoedown Cloggers will perform.

Refreshments will be available including bean hole beans on Saturday and fresh baked homemade pies.

For additional information please call 583-6455.

Music Makers at Gazebo

On Sunday, July 26, the Mahosuc Arts Council will host the Mahosuc Music Makers in concert from 4-5 p.m. on the Common as part of the Council's Gazebo Series. The Music Makers will perform a repertoire ranging from "oldies but goodies" band standards to theme songs from musicals and movies.

The Mahosuc Music Makers are a community band that has been in existence since 1993 when they performed their first concert for Molykett Day in Bethel. Under the musical direction of Jonathan Smith, the band performs annual Christmas, spring and summer concerts as well as appearances in various local celebrations. Additionally, the Music Makers have provided school programs as part of "Music in Our Schools" during March at Crescent Park School. They have provided funding for bussing Andover and Woodstock elementary students to these concerts as part of their outreach efforts.

Membership includes 150 supporters and musicians. The Music Makers rehearse on Monday evenings from 7-9 p.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church. They are always looking for new musicians to join the 30 regular players.

Upcoming concerts in the Gazebo Series will be held on Aug. 2, featuring the Irish Music and sea shanties of Rakish Paddy and the Zingo Zango Generic Jug Band on Aug. 9.

'FOREVER PLAID' When most of us think of the 1950's, we think of rock 'n' roll, greasers, hot rods, Elvis, Annette, Fabian, DA haircuts and teenage rebellion. But there was a flip side to this era - the side of harmony, innocence and the sincerity of dreams. It was a period when four-part guy groups harmonized their way across the airwaves, jukeboxes and hi-fis of the country. Throughout the land they would stand at a quartet of microphones, crooning a multitude of chaperoned prom-goers into dreamy romance. "The Plaids" bring back this time with the performance of the musical hit, "Forever Plaid." The cast of the Oxford Hills production of "Plaid" are from left to right: Sam Tisdale, Jeff Orvig, Todd Hutchins and Dawson Hill along with supporting crew members Elton Cole, producer, of Woodstock, Amy Frost Ford of Bethel and Robert Evans of Woodstock. "Forever Plaid" will be performed on July 23, 24, 25, 26, 30 and 31 and Aug. 1 and 2 at the Paris Hill Academy. Tickets are on sale at Books & Things, Oxford Plaza, 743-7197.

Bethel Area C. of C.

The Ninth Annual Textron Financial Corp and Merrill Corp Bethel Area Chamber Golf Classic was held at the Bethel Inn and Country Club on Monday, July 13. This year's tournament had a 9 a.m. shotgun start for the 18-hole foursome scramble.

The winning team with a low gross score of 59 was the Irish Mist-Allen Conners, George Driscoll, Casey Hughes and Jim Wing; next was Bethel Inn and Country Club #1 with a low gross score of 61-Dick Raso, Bob Patton, Steve Polli and John Turner; followed by Ripley and Fletcher with a low gross score of 63-Mike Brennan, Dave Whitman, Scott Dennis and Lloyd Williams.

First place net score of 59 was The Bethel Citizen-Jim Costello, Sr., Ed Snook, Jim Thornton and Maureen Wedge; next with a net score of 65, Dead River Co.-Casey Cramton, Bill Cramton, Bill Gorwood and Jack Salivonchik; followed by Nadeau Tire and Service with a net score of 65-Mike Nadeau, Jack Cronin, Mike Nadeau and Wayne LeBlanc. We extend our sincere appreciation to committee co-chairs Eileen Schneider and Bill Brown and committee members Bob Laux, Cynthia Moran Laux, Punky Davis, Jason Hurd, Art Marshall, Barry Estes and George Driscoll. Special thanks to the volunteers who made it happen: Anita Remington, Dillon Gillespie, Joe Cardello, Allen and Jackie Cressy, Michele Varuolo, Georgia Taylor, Jed Dole, Robin Mills, Effie Ypsilantis, Teri Cook, Doug Fillerbrown, Joanne Best, Tara Bedard, Christine Laberl, Becky Papiak and to C.E. Johnson, graphic designer.

Congratulations to Allen Connors and Mike Stuart for winning the chance to drive 165 yards for one million dollars in the Million Dollar Shootout, better luck next year.

Chamber events wouldn't happen without volunteers; we can't thank you enough, but we'll try.

Mollycoddett Day was a fun day for the chamber with members and friends taking part in the chamber's events. Special thanks to Dillon and Paula Gillies for coordinating the Key Bank Mollycoddett Day classic one-mile, five-mile and walking events. We had 17 participants. Special thanks to registration volunteers Heather Craig, Becky Cummings, John Ippolito, Susan Isham, Michele Varuolo, Marguerite Graham, Art Marshall and Allen and Jackie Cressy. Special thanks also to the finish line workers, timers and race officials Levi Brown, Denny and Rosemary Bunn, Tim Kavanagh, John and Tracy Mason, Cathy Newell, Peter Rackliffe, Colin Reuter and Dick Taylor. Sponsors included title sponsor, Key Bank and Gröan and McGurn, Maine Line Products, NTL Institute, Preb's Pharmacies, Seltzer and Rydholm, Sunday River Ski Resort and United States Cellular.

Special thanks to Jim Largess for coordinating the Lobster Roll Booth, to the Bethel Inn and Country Club maintenance team for setting it up and to the volunteers who made and served lobster rolls all day, Natalie Timberlake, Allen Connors, Heather Craig, Anita Remington, Art Marshall, Sandy and Scott Dennis, Rene McGrew, Joanne Best and Susan Isham.

Mollycoddett Day T-shirts and Duck Race ticket sales were brisk thanks to Michele Varuolo, Kevin Finley, Barbara Russell, Susan and Katie Driscoll, Sandra Frye and Heather Craig. Thanks to Ken Irons for designing the t-shirt. Our sincere appreciation to George Driscoll and his team of duck race enthusiasts including P.J. McSparrin, Bob Laux, Kevin Finley, Shawn Owen and Susan and Katie Driscoll and to the ducks.

The C.B. Kenworth Maine putting contest was a popular event. Special thanks to volunteer Kate Graham. Unfortunately no one won the $10,000 for sinking a 50-foot putt. Hopefully next year we'll have a winner.

The Ninth Annual Maine State Triathlon Classic will be held this Sunday, July 26, at 8 a.m. A 5k swim in Songo Pond, a 25k bicycle ride along Routes 5 and 35 and a wooded 5k wooded trail run at Gould Academy make up this challenging event. Call the chamber office at 207-824-2282 to register as an individual or team or to volunteer.

Bethel Heritage Days will take place Sept. 19 and 20. The committee will meet again on Wednesday, Aug. 5, and again on Wednesday, Aug. 19, at 10:00 at the Evans Notch Ranger Station/Maine Visitors Information Center on Route 2. Businesses and community organizations must have their events to the committee at or before the Aug. 19 meeting so that we have time to include you in the promotional flyer.

About the Business Person who Doesn't Advertise...

This person wakes up in the morning to the sound of an advertised alarm clock, climbs out of his advertised bed, and takes off his advertised pajamas. Then he takes a bath in an advertised tub, with advertised soap, shaves with an advertised razor, eats an advertised breakfast food, puts on his advertised clothes and drives to work in his advertised car. He then sits at an advertised desk and writes with an advertised pen. Yet this man doesn't advertise - saying that advertising does not pay.

Eventually, when his unadvertised business goes under, he will advertise it for sale!
